PRIDAY MORNING, PERRUARY 11.

Mancock County and the Prope New Cumberland, February 7, 1881.

The present temperance movemen shows what can be done by concert of action. The State organization has succeeded in reaching almost every county in the State, and in sending in to the Legislature about 19,000 names to petitions for an amendment to our Constitution prohibiting the manfacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the State. I would suggest that the bill be amended so as to read "prohibit forever the manufacture or sale." As the bill now stands might not a man manufacture intoxicating liquors if he did not sell in the State? And could he not sell provided he was not a manufacturer?

Owing to some oversight, the banner county of Hancock has not yet reported a single name, but we expect to send in today a few names hurriedly gathered instead of a list, as we could and should, of a thousand. For 40 years we have not ng to so y of Hancock base e name, but we expect to a few names hurriedly gathers and of a list, as we could and should, of housand. For 40 years we have not ad a distillery or a dramshop in our limes, and we hope the adoption of the samendment will in like manner bless every county in West Virginia. The state of Maine extended our example all over the country several years since, and its so kansas adopted the same platform, which we hope in time to see adopted by every State in the Union.

Gov. St. John, of Kanssa, in his annual message to the Legislature of that State, just assembled, after reminding that body that the amendment had been adopted by majority of 9,000, says:

The Reporter certainly must be mistaken about a nightwatchman being employed two inmates, and they are entirely too well pleased with their accommodations to induce to leave until spring comes, at least.

message to the Legissian just assembled, after reminding that the amendment had been adopted by a majority of 9,000, says:

"This amendment being now a part of the Constitution of our State, it devolves upon you to enact such laws as are necessary for its rigid enforcement. There are but few citizens to-day in Kanasa who will not admit that "dramshops are a curse to any people. More crime, povorty, misery and degradation flow from them—than—from all other sources combined. The real difference of opinion existing in relation to them, is not so mach as to whether they are an evil or a blessing, but rather as to what course should be pursued towards them. Some have contended that they should be licensed, but it seems to me if they are an evil no government, should give them the sanction of the law. They should be prohibited to the contended that they should be prohibited to the conten existing in relation to them, is not so much as to whether they are an evil or a blessing, but rather as to what course should be pursued towards them. Some have contended that they should be licensed, but it seems to me if they are an evil no government, should give them the sanction of the law. They should be prohibited as we prohibital other acknowledged evils. It has been urged as an argument in favor of licensing dramshope, that under that system a large revenue is derived. Granilug this to be true, I linsist that we have no right to consider the question of revenue at a cost of the sacrifice of principle. All the revenue ever received from such a source will not compensate for a single tear of a heartbroken mother at the sight of her drunken son as he reels away from the door of a licensed dram-shop. But viewing the question solely from a financial standpoint, all persons who take pains to give the matter a thorough and impartial investigation will be forced to admit that every dollar of revenue derived from such license costs the pueple not less than ten the such that every dollar of revenue derived from such license costs the pueple not less than ten the such as the s very dollar of revenue derived from such every dollar of revenue derived from such license costs the people not less than ten dollars in loss of time and property, costs of courts, prisons and poor houses, saying nothing of the destruction of the physical, mental and moral element of mankind, which cannot be estimated."

The Governor closes his message with a sentence worthy to become the motto of every good citizen in every State, viz: "Let it not be said that there is an evil in the State greater than the power of the people."

Hancock county will give 500 majority for the ratification of the amendment we are permitted to vote upon it.

The Kauawha Board and the Appropria-tion for That River. Washington, February 8, 1881.

As you see by the telegrams, the River As you see by the telegrams, the River and Harbor bill failed to pass the House yesterday. It is too heavy. There is one thing about the Kanawha river appropriation that should be noticed in your columns. The Government has already would produce a sufficient rise in the appropriated $1,000,000 for that river, and the Kanawha Board still maintains the right to collect tolls on everything that passes over its waters between Charleston and the Charl passes over its waters between Charleston and the Chio. The report of this Board for the thirteen months ending January 1, 1881, shows that they collected over $15, 600 (over $$,000 in tolls) and there was only $340 used in removing obstructions or for any other purpose in the river. This money, with the exception of this $340, was absorbed in paying commissions and salaries to directors, collectors, Secretary, &c. The Board is out of dala, and is wasted by Description of the wasted by Description of the salaries to directors, collectors, Secretary, &c. The Board is out of dala, and is wasted by Description of the was This money, with the exception of this $346, was absorbed in paying commissions and salaries to directors, collectors, Secretary, &c. The Board is out of debt, and by their last report has assetts amounting to over$18,000. During the last year the dragges have been in the employ of the Government on this same river, and it has paid the Board from $20 to $35 per day each for the use of them. This is an outrage not only on the people of the State and elsewhere, who are compelled to use the river, but on the Government as well. The State derives no benefit whatever from this organization, and no persons are benefitted except the half dozen men who constitute the Board. The coal, salt and lumber men who do business in the valley, as well as the citizens along the river, have petitioned our Legislature to pass an act abolishing this lloard, requiring it to sell the dredges, &c., pay the debts, if any, and hand the residue of the proceeds into the State Treasury for the benefit of the State Treasury for the present these would not collect tolls. This is only a bilnd to induce the Legislature not to pass the bill. The Board has a lobby in Wheeling, and the Charles ton papers have not the independence to speak out against this outrage. Should the River and Harbor bill reach the Senate this session, the Kanawha river item will be opposed on that account, and it is very important that our State relinquish all rights to the river.

Drowned in Short Creek.
A man named Thompson, halling from the vicinity of West Middletown, Washington county, Pa., came to this city on Tuesday with a sled load of pelts, which he he disposed of and started for home next day via the Valley Road between here and Clinton. He had come down the same way and crossed Short Creek on the ice at Dr. English's ford, and although the creek had broken up that night and was running swiftly, with five feet of water in the channel, he insisted on having his colored man, who was driving, cross through the flood. He was warned by some persons at the blacksmith shop not to attempt such a performance, but being under the influence of liquor he scoffed at the sevice and told the driver to go ahead. The latter was induced, however, by the advice of bystanders, to get out of the sled and mount one of the horses, which he did, and then waded in. He had gone only a few steps when the sled floated round down stream in the swift current, and submerged, pulling the horses at ter it. The colored man seeing his danger got off the near horse and jumped ont on a cake of ice and then into the water and scrambled to the shore, thoroughly soaked with water. One of the horses also got to shore, but the other, along with the channel, he insisted on having his

Thompson, was carried down the stream, and both were drowned. Persons who witnessed the drowning followed the man down stream two miles and a half, and saw the body rise and sink several times, but up to yesterday no tidings were heard of its recovery. He probably floated out to the river. The colored man said that he had $50 in his pocket, the proceeds of his sale of pelis. The deceased was an Irishman and leaves a wife and five children. He is represented as having been an industrious man, not addicted to drink save when away from home.

The "Moundaville Dramatic Combination" are having frequent rehearsals, preparatory to a public entertainment, but have not yet definitely decided upon the date of their debut.

Why is it that the Report of the Board of Directors and Officers of the Penitentiary, as published, only covers the last six months of the two years intervening since the last report? These reports are made semi-annusly, and I cannot understand why it is not equally as important stand why it is not equally as importan to publish those for the precedin eighteen months as the last six of the tw
